What Other Students Say About This Course:

“Because this course delved into the issues of a present time, I found it very helpful in forming opinions and considering the issues of today.”

“This course helped me to see things through others’ eyes. I don’t have to agree with something a person says, but we all need to learn to be respectful of others and their opinions. If the whole world could treat people like this class treated each other, it would be a much happier (and educated) world.”

“Whole class discussions were awesome. I really looked forward to them.”

“I liked that our ideas were never wrong. Most teachers want you to get the exact same ideas as them from reading books and other pieces of literature, but Ms. Nalley let us have our own ideas and told us they were still valid. I liked that we had freedom on assignments to take them where we wanted to and could be creative.”

COURSE DESCRIPTION

The primary objective of sophomore literature is to provide you with the skills necessary to perform close reading of texts in a variety of genres, including poetry, essays, novels, short stories, and creative nonfiction. The importance of reading closely is emphasized and necessary for daily discussion. You will become more confident in your abilities to analyze literature, both formally (e.g., in written essays) and informally (e.g., discussions).

The focus in this course will be texts that explore humanity’s collective identity, specifically in regards to socioeconomics, gender, and race. We will participate in rigorous discussions that examine various perspectives, dissect the ethics of appropriation, and ultimately, question the overall role of literature as a catalyst for human empathy.

Additionally, this class is participating in Clemson’s “CT2” campus-wide Quality Enhancement Plan to target undergraduate critical thinking, an invaluable skill for you to strengthen during your college career (employers highly value this skill!). We will focus on consciously practicing critical thinking skills throughout the semester: in our discussions, reflections, presentations, and projects. As part of this effort, you will complete two versions of the California Critical Thinking Skills Test (CCTST) and submit an artifact (one of our three projects) as a measure of mastery of critical thinking skills.

GENERAL EDUCATION REQUIREMENTS: In meeting the requirements of this course, you will demonstrate competencies in three University general education areas, including:

• Arts & Humanities: Demonstrate an understanding of the arts and humanities in historical and cultural contexts;

• Communications: Effective oral and written communication is the means by which all competencies will be demonstrated; and

• Critical Thinking: Demonstrate the ability to assemble information relevant to a significant, complex issue, evaluate the quality and utility of the information, and use the outcome of the analysis to reach a logical conclusion about the issue.
LEARNING OUTCOMES
(INCLUSIVE OF CRITICAL THINKING SKILLS):

1. You will read, critically review, and analyze a variety of literature that transcends historical periods and genres. Within discussions and assignments related to these readings, you will explore complex challenges and analyze multi-dimensional issues.

2. You will identify, critically reflect upon, and articulate the cultural relevance for the texts analyzed (not only within the cultures in which the texts were written or written about, but also how the themes and philosophies in the texts permeate our contemporary culture).

3. You will strengthen your writing craft through reflection in informal written assignments, as well as in a formal academic paper. You will communicate complex ideas effectively through both oral and written analyses.

4. You will apply your knowledge of the text and its cultural context to a new media and/or creative project, wherein you will extrapolate from one complex conceptual context to another.

5. You will collaborate with peers to create a dynamic presentation that synthesizes close textual reading and critical thinking. This requires you to work together to evaluate peers’ analyses, distill information, and articulate the group’s collective response to a text.

In-class writings and discussions, individual and group projects and presentations, and final exam are used as the measure of mastery of these learning objectives.
COURSE CONTENT

We will use the online learning management system, Canvas, for our course (in lieu of Blackboard).

YOU MUST ALWAYS USE THE LINK PROVIDED IN THE ORIGINAL INVITATION TO CANVAS OR YOU CAN USE WWW.CLEMSON.INSTRUCTURE.COM. DO NOT GOOGLE CANVAS AND TRY TO LOG IN. You must use the Clemson portal, otherwise Canvas will not recognize your login, and you will lose access!

1. Required Text Reading: You will have daily reading assignments, as indicated on the course schedule at the end of this syllabus. Be sure to have thoroughly read the text prior to the date it is due on the schedule! Please note you must purchase the following books. All other readings will be provided on our Canvas page (or as a link from our Canvas page):

   1. Night, Elie Wiesel
   2. The Round House, Louise Erdrich
   3. Persepolis, Marjane Satrapi
   4. Citizen, An American Lyric, Claudia Rankine

2. In-class Writing and Quizzes: You will participate in daily in-class writing exercises through our Canvas Portal. I will offer a question or prompt, and you are to reflect and respond in a thoughtful way. These will be used to test your knowledge of the reading material and often to jumpstart our classroom discussion. Be sure to always bring your laptops to complete these writing responses! We may also have several unannounced quizzes that will test your knowledge of the reading material if deemed necessary.
3. Projects: You will complete three projects during the course of this class. While the due dates for these projects are set, you are able to choose which project to complete for each due date. During the course of the semester, you must complete all 3 projects (in other words, you cannot complete the same type of project twice). These projects may be used as CT2 artifacts, showing how your critical thinking skills have strengthened in the class.

Projects include:
1) Compiling an anthology of 5-8 pieces of non-fiction, poetry, or combination that relates topically or thematically to our work(s) within a module and providing a one paragraph synopsis of each that explains the connection;
2) Writing a 1,500-word paper critically analyzing a topic or theme from our work(s) within a module; and
3) Creating an artistic work of choice (sketch, painting, collage, infographic, video, etc.) inspired by and relating thematically or topically to our work(s) within a module.

4. Group Presentation: We will break into groups to examine a theme or topic of the book Citizen, An American Lyric (assigned by me). Your group will read, analyze, research, discuss, and work to create a dynamic lesson plan to present to the rest of the class. In other words, YOU will be teaching this book. Your group will offer the class a 30-45 minute instruction on your group’s section of the book.

5. Midterm and Final Exams: In lieu of a midterm exam, I will hold conferences wherein students will meet with me one-on-one to discuss their progress. Students who earn an A average by the end of the semester can exempt the final exam.
GRADES AND FEEDBACK

Grades and feedback are provided generally one week after the assignment is turned in. Unless otherwise stated, grades and feedback will be available on Canvas. If ever you need to discuss your grade with me, send me an email to set up a time to talk or come see me during office hours.

CLASS POLICIES

Absences: You are allowed a maximum of three absences. I do not distinguish between excused and unexcused. For every absence over the maximum, your final grade will be reduced by one letter grade per absence (i.e., You have 5 absences, so the highest possible grade you could make in the class is a C). There are several compelling reasons for your attendance. One, this class is participatory by nature; absences affect the wellbeing of the entire class. Two, assignments will be explained in class. Three, missing class sessions is likely to put you very far behind, not only in your comprehension of the texts, but also in your grades. And, four, this class will be fun, and you will be totally missing out. With that said, please note: I WILL NOT drop any assignment, writing, or quiz grades. If you miss a class, it is your responsibility to get class notes, etc., from a fellow classmate. Do NOT email me asking what you missed in class; rather, contact a classmate. Further, absences will affect your class participation grade, as if you are not in class, you cannot participate. Missed in-class writing exercises, quizzes, and assignments cannot be made up, so be mindful of attendance.

Weather Cancellations: Any exam that was scheduled at the time of a class cancellation due to inclement weather will be given at the next class meeting unless contacted by the instructor. Any assignments due at the time of a class cancellation due to inclement weather will be due at the next class meeting unless contacted by the instructor. Any extension or postponement of assignments or exams must be granted by the instructor via email or Canvas within 24 hours of the weather related cancellation.

Electronic Devices: Laptops, iPads, Kindles, etc., are allowed in class, as some of your readings are available online and you must have your laptop to complete in-class writing assignments. These devices should only be used for coursework. Cell phones should be turned off and put away while in class. If you choose to use any device for texting, Twitter, Facebook, Pinterest, or any other online activity during class, your ultimate class participation grade will reflect this.

Collaborative Work: Collaborative work is a required component of this course. Students are expected to work collaboratively by participating vigorously in discussions to contribute to the intellectual climate of the classroom. Our class is primarily based upon discussion, so you are expected to talk a lot in this class. Failure to do so will be reflected in your class participation grade. Further, students will participate in a group project toward the end of the semester, and each person’s ability to collaborate within the group is vital.

Late Work: Assignments must be ready, proofed, and turned in on their due dates. If you elect to turn in an assignment late, it will be marked down one grade per day late, up to four days. After four days, the grade will be recorded as zero. Missed in-class writing exercises, quizzes, and assignments cannot be made up, so be mindful of attendance.

Waiting: If I am not in class 10 minutes after our start time, you may leave.

ADDITIONAL POLICIES
In addition to the policies as stated above, this class will adhere to the following:
• All assignments are due at the beginning of class or by their due date on Canvas. Hand in all assignments to the instructor, and/or upload to Canvas as indicated. Do NOT leave an assignment on your desk, under my door, in my box, etc.
• Consistent attendance, punctuality and participation are expected. If you have a serious and compelling reason for absences, please speak with me in private. In-class activities may not be made up.
• All assignments must be word-processed. Handwritten assignments WILL NOT be accepted unless indicated.

UNIVERSITY POLICIES

PLAGIARISM AND ACADEMIC INTEGRITY:
As members of the Clemson University community, we have inherited Thomas Green Clemson’s vision of this institution as a “high seminary of learning.” Fundamental to this vision is a mutual commitment to truthfulness, honor, and responsibility, without which we cannot earn the trust and respect of others. Furthermore, we recognize that academic dishonesty detracts from the value of a Clemson degree. Therefore, we shall not tolerate lying, cheating, or stealing in any form. When, in the opinion of a faculty member, there is evidence that a student has committed an act of academic dishonesty, the faculty member shall make a formal written charge of academic dishonesty, including a description of the misconduct, to the Associate Dean of Undergraduate Studies. If you have any questions whatsoever about what constitutes plagiarism, see me before you turn in final drafts of your work. Students are not allowed to submit work from other classes for credit in this course.

DISABILITY ACCESS STATEMENT: Clemson University values the diversity of our student body as a strength and a critical component of our dynamic community. Students with disabilities or temporary injuries/conditions may require accommodations due to barriers in the structure of facilities, course design, technology used for curricular purposes, or other campus resources. Students who experience a barrier to full access to this class should let the professor know, and make an appointment to meet with a staff member in Student Accessibility Services as soon as possible. You can make an appointment by calling 864-656-6848, by emailing studentaccess@lists.clemson.edu, or by visiting Suite 239 in the Academic Success Center building. Appointments are strongly encouraged – drop-ins will be seen if at all possible, but there could be a significant wait due to scheduled appointments. Students who receive Academic Access Letters are strongly encouraged to request, obtain and present these to their professors as early in the semester as possible so that accommodations can be made in a timely manner. It is the student’s responsibility to follow this process each semester.
