Your choice. Your future.

Clemson offers 80+ undergraduate degree programs. You can dual major, major-minor, select concentrations and obtain professional certifications within a rigorous core curriculum. Each path to your career goal is unique. At Clemson, you can explore every option, receive local and online mentoring, connect with companies that have hired our grads and find out what graduate schools fit you.

Clemson University is ranked No. 24 among national public universities by U.S. News & World Report. Founded in 1889, we’re dedicated to excellence in teaching, research and service.

What sets us apart from other top schools?

The opportunities our students have every day to gain the hands-on experiences needed to succeed in life after graduation — all with the support of a diverse campus community that is passionate about making a difference.

Not sure what you want to study? The Center for Career and Professional Development matches your talents and interests with internships, networking opportunities and real-world experiences — all designed to help students land that first job, pursue graduate programs and more.
Clemson University is designated a Carnegie R1 research institution and offers state-of-the-art facilities to learn, grow and live.

Get creative. Creative Inquiry (CI) defines undergraduate research at Clemson. Starting freshman year, students are empowered by faculty mentors to take ownership of cross-disciplinary, team-based investigations and make an impact on 21st-century challenges.

At the end of a CI, participants often find themselves traveling internationally or presenting their research at national conferences — fielding questions in front of both professors and industry professionals.

Reach your potential in proven academic programs. Clemson’s most academically competitive students call our Calhoun Honors College home. Honors students are housed in the Honors Residential College at Cribb and DesChamps halls, take specialized courses in smaller classes taught by renowned faculty and are encouraged to participate in global engagement opportunities and innovative research. We also provide individualized funding for internships and professional development.

Get ahead. Center for Career and Professional Development
Get a jumpstart on your career goals. The Princeton Review ranks Clemson No. 2 for “Best Career Services Programs” and No. 7 “Best Schools for Internships” because we partner with a variety of industry employers to provide relevant internship and cooperative education opportunities.

A popular option is the UPIC program, which offers paid, on-campus internships working alongside faculty and staff while earning course credit.

Hit the ground running. Clemson University offers a series of special events designed to get you the job of your dreams. These events bring employers to campus to meet students, discuss employment opportunities, arrange for interviews or provide a personal touch to the job search process.

Class of 1956 Academic Success Center (ASC)
Located at the heart of campus near the Cooper Library and the Watt Family Innovation Center, the ASC helps students significantly improve their grades and maintain their academic scholarships through a better understanding of difficult class material. The free services available here include Peer-Assisted Learning, academic coaching and tutoring. Students also seek out the ASC for success strategy workshops and quiet study group areas.
Just be you.

College is more than classes, exams and grade point averages. It’s about the relationships you will build, the friendships you will make and the experiences that will define you. And Clemson is a great place to start.
