For students enrolled in traditionally difficult courses, SI provides group study sessions that are facilitated by students who have successfully completed the course. These programs are helping thousands of Clemson students significantly improve their grades and their understanding of difficult course material.

SI leaders are peers who:
- want to help other students succeed
- have received an A in the class
- are trained to facilitate learning
- attend class and do all assigned material
- communicate with the faculty about course content

SI sessions are:
- offered in courses where a high percentage of enrolled students earn a final grade of D, F or W
- held for three hours per week
- collaborative
- voluntary

Supplemental Instruction — Studying Interactively

Personalized Academic Assistance

Academic Coaching
Academic Coaching is available to students who want regularly scheduled meetings in an effort to improve academic and non-cognitive skills. In addition to important study strategies, the coach will work with students on time management, motivation, goal setting and other important academic and life skills. The ongoing meetings provide structure, support, feedback and accountability for students.

Academic Counseling
The Academic Counselor meets one-on-one with students to evaluate their study methods and develop strategies for academic success.

Counseling topics include:
- test preparation
- memory techniques
- time management

Academic Skills Workshops
Academic Skills Workshops are designed to build academic skills and enhance student learning.

- Over 50 live workshop presentations each semester led by faculty, staff, and peer mentors (STARS)
- Topics include: Test Anxiety, Note Taking, Time Management, Procrastination, and many others
- Visit clemson.edu/asc/workshops for descriptions and registration link for live workshops
