

FELIX ACADEMICUS ORDER FORM

Felix Academicus: Tales of a Happy Academic*, by Skip Eisiminger (Clemson, SC: Clemson University Digital Press, 2007), pp. vi + 154. $16 paper.

This book is a potpourri of thirty-two essays and poems written by Skip Eisiminger between the turn of the twenty-first century and mid-2006. As the enclosed works will show, Eisiminger is an academic who still looks forward to Monday mornings, even after thirty-six years of teaching in Clemson University's Department of English. The collection opens with a secular-humanist essay that was written for a contest sponsored by a religious foundation. After it was completed, however, the author learned that the final judge was a fundamentalist Christian. Needless to say, it did not win, place, or show. The book closes with some speculations on immortality, one aspect of which depends heavily on this essay! In between is a wildflower garden of sacred and profane efflorescences.

To order, send the form (below) to The Director, Center for Electronic and Digital Publishing, Strode Tower, Box 340522, Clemson University, Clemson, SC 29634-0522:

FELIX ACADEMICUS ORDER FORM (Make checks payable to "Clemson University")

Name: _____
Address: _____

_____ (zip code) _____
Telephone: _____

Quantity: _____ x $16.00
Subtotal: _____
Shipping: _____ ($2 x Quantity)
TOTAL: _____
E-mail: _____