The Arts have a Foundational Legacy at Clemson University

“The Beautiful arts ... the magic bonds which unite all ages and Nations.”

Excerpt from a lecture delivered by Thomas Green Clemson at the Second Festival of the Washington Art Association, 1859.

Students faculty and alumni have long understood the importance of the visionary act that the founder of Clemson University, Thomas Green Clemson, took on November 6, 1886, by founding what would become, Clemson University. Few, however, know that Clemson was also an avid art collector, painter, and a nationally recognized arts advocate. When Thomas Green Clemson specified in his will that “Fort Hill place”, formerly the home of his father-in-law, John C. Calhoun, be set aside for “the establishment of a scientific institution,” he also specified that the content of that education should combine both “physical and intellectual education,” moreover stipulating that the resulting institution offering said education be “a high seminary of learning1.”

Clemson’s will also declared that Fort Hill should “never be torn down or altered, but shall be kept in repair … [and] always be open for the inspection of visitors,” making special note that his substantive collection of art — his “pictures and paintings” — remain “to adorn the Fort Hill house.”

To take Thomas Green Clemson’s will as a statement of Thomas Green Clemson’s relationship to the arts, however, would not merely be an incomplete picture, but a gross misrepresentation. To understand that one should consult William David Hiott’s article, “Thomas Green Clemson: Art Collector and Artist” published in the book Thomas Green Clemson edited by Alma Bennett:

“Thomas Green Clemson’s affection for the arts is poignantly described in his [1859] address [at the Second Festival of the Washington Art Association as] ‘The Beautiful Arts—the magic bonds which unite all ages and Nations.’

“Thomas G. Clemson’s passion for the fine arts provides an invaluable glimpse into Thomas Clemson the man. After all, this is the person who, in 1859, insisted, ‘All organized beings [are] artists—from the minute creature that built up the coral islands and twined coral wreaths around the world up to man.’ In art as in other segments of his career, he was an enlightened man ahead of his time.

“Today, the Thomas Green Clemson Art Collection is remarkably intact. It is also remarkable that, by specifically giving most of that collection to Fort Hill, Clemson established an artistic legacy for his namesake institution of higher learning as well as a tangible and highly personal link with its founder.”

So, know that as an Art Major at Clemson University, you are taking part in a legacy of creativity that links you to one of the most abiding passions of its founder, Thomas Green Clemson: the arts. If you have not yet been to visit Fort Hill to see the collection, which includes several canvases by Clemson himself, I encourage you to do so. Entry is free.

Welcome to the Bachelor of Fine Arts Degree Program

Our Bachelor of Fine Arts degree was established in 1990 in what used to be the College of Architecture. The College was restructured to include the Humanities and Performing Arts, resulting in the new College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities. There are three Schools within this larger college with the Department of Art and the Department of Performing Arts making up the School of the Arts. The Department of Art includes both Studio Art and Art and Architectural History course offerings. We offer the BFA and MFA degrees in studio art with concentrations in Ceramics, Drawing, Painting, Photography, Printmaking, and Sculpture.

2 William David Hiott is a native of Walterboro, with BS, MS, PhD & MD degrees from the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston. After teaching pharmacology at the Medical College, Dr. Hiott practiced family medicine for 30 years in Walterboro. After retiring six years ago, he began cultivating an interest in the Revolutionary War and World War II and began amassing an extensive library of books on both subjects. Dr. Hiott has two direct Hiott ancestors who fought in the South Carolina Continental line, and a brother who was killed in France in World War II. He is the volunteer archivist at the Colleton Genealogy Center in Walterboro.

This handbook, for the BFA degree in Studio Art, is intended to supplement the University Undergraduate Announcements catalog, providing you with the specific working procedures necessary to successfully complete your course requirements. If you read and consult this BFA handbook along with the University Announcements http://www.registrar.clemson.edu/publicat/catalog/2016/2016.html, you should be able to complete your graduation requirements with a minimum of confusion. It is important to note that the program curriculum should be followed in order to complete degree requirements and graduate in the accustomed four-year time line. University Announcements and the Student Handbook will provide more detailed information about campus activities, financial assistance, rules and regulations, etc. Information is also available on-line at www.clemson.edu.

According to the College Art Association: “Colleges and universities in North and South America offer two general types of undergraduate degrees in visual art and design that are characterized by a difference of purpose and intention, evidenced in both curricular focus and format. The bachelor of arts (BA) is a liberal-arts degree that focuses on the study of art, design, and art history in the context of a broader program of general study. The bachelor of fine arts (BFA) is a professional degree that focuses on intensive work in visual art and design supported by a program in general studies. The latter degree is normally intended to prepare students to pursue a professional practice on a global level. Both degrees are structured to be completed in four years.

NASAD Accreditation: NASAD, the National Association of Schools of Art & Design, is an association of approximately 346 schools of art and design, primarily at the collegiate level, but also including postsecondary non-degree-granting schools for the visual arts disciplines. It is the national accrediting agency for art and design and art and design-related disciplines.

The Art Department at Clemson University is an accredited member of NASAD and is listed as such on their web site: http://nasad.accredit.org/index.jsp?page=List_Accredited_Members

The BFA Program - A Brief Synopsis of Goals and Expectations
The faculty of the Art Department is committed to providing a challenging and professional course of study for the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree. The curriculum has been designed to educate the student to achieve a high level of proficiency as a visual artist. Expectations include rigorous study of both techniques and concepts in art, which must be demonstrated in the production of high quality artwork within the student’s chosen emphasis area.

What to Expect as an Art Major

Applicants who enroll in classes in the Department of Art at Clemson University must be committed to a rigorous course of study that includes studio techniques, conceptual directions and art history. Students must participate in both traditional lecture/discussion classes as well as studio modes of learning. As such, students are required to be intensively engaged in a variety of cognitive and physical activities. The list of required activities includes, but is not limited to:

- Participate in all phases of art production and studio maintenance. This covers a broad range of physical movements and hand-eye coordinated activities that includes, but is not limited to: working at a drawing or painting easel, design table, sculpture stand, or digital interface for extended periods of time; free-hand drawing and painting; using hand and power tools to measure, cut, fold and secure designs; spatial understanding that allows for mark-making, mold-making, modeling, carving, and casting; as well as other traditional and evolving design and fabrication methods utilized in executing original designs and works of art in ceramics, digital/computer, drawing, foundations, painting, photography, printmaking and sculpture laboratories and classrooms; this also includes active participation (physical work) to clean and maintain the department’s art studios and classrooms;

- Produce original works of art that are compelling on aesthetic, conceptual and technical levels in a variety of mediums, genres and styles. Students must be ready, willing and able to participate fully in the design and fabrication of actual works of art and design that result from both direct classroom instruction (assignments) and purely independent motivations;

- View reference materials and observe demonstrations, as well as to understand required lectures in studio art and art history courses;

- See images, process information and clearly communicate with faculty, staff and their peers;
• Analyze and discuss works of art produced in the program, as well as examples drawn from a broad range of cultural and historical references. In written and oral critique sessions, students are expected to respond to a variety of learning modalities occurring in both traditional and nontraditional teaching environments;

• Actively participate in a learning environment that encompasses an openly diverse range of philosophical, social, moral, and ethical approaches to the creation and analysis of past and present forms of art and culture;

• Undertake serious study of the human form. Figure drawing, the traditional cornerstone of art training that includes portraiture and the nude, is a required component of the curriculum;

• Work in both large and small group settings in the completion of program related tasks, from maintaining a clean and productive studio environment to working collaboratively on art and research assignments.

Program Description

The undergraduate art program requires a minimum of 120 credit hours of undergraduate course work, typically taken over four years, and leads to the Bachelor of Fine Arts degree in Art.

The BFA program is small enough to allow the close interaction and free exchange of ideas that are so vital to an effective learning environment. With typically no more than 15 students enrolled in a studio course, individual instruction is a high priority. Students have direct contact with faculty work in the studio, which allows them to share both technical and conceptual processes.

Our students are encouraged to explore, achieve and create. You'll be immersed in a rigorous course of study that includes studio techniques, conceptual directions and art history.

The student undergraduate experience is enhanced by informal professional activities with faculty; field trips to art centers in Charlotte, Columbia, Atlanta, New York City and Washington, D.C.; interaction with visiting artists; and opportunities for local and regional exhibitions.

Whether you plan a career in making, teaching or managing art, you'll leave Clemson having had numerous opportunities to explore your abilities and develop your creativity.
With the help of the faculty, students choose a major area of study, or emphasis area.

Emphasis areas include:
- Ceramics,
- Drawing,
- Painting,
- Photography
- Printmaking
- Sculpture

Regardless of your emphasis area, you'll have access to the department’s ceramics, drawing, painting and printmaking studios, plus computer, photo and sculpture labs. Art historians, with a deep knowledge of modern and contemporary art, offer a rich understanding of past and current developments, will help provide context for your studies.

You'll be encouraged to investigate materials, processes and contexts that best suit your mode of expression. Rigorous studio activity and strong conceptual development are vital for success in this program. You’ll produce a cohesive body of artwork and a portfolio for graduate study or professional applications.

Emphasis Areas (Concentrations)
- Ceramics
  Deepen your understanding of the diverse range of materials, concepts and processes related to clay, and develop a dynamic, individual practice in a supportive studio environment.
- Drawing
  Develop skills of observation, perception and interpretation through the immediate and immersive act of drawing and through experimenting with various drawing mediums and processes.
- Painting
  Cultivate your talent formally and conceptually to become a versatile, vital contributor to the contemporary art-making dialogue.
- Photography
  Master the tools, techniques and methods, including traditional black and white film and contemporary digital formats.
- Printmaking
  Explore the myriad possibilities offered — traditional and nontraditional materials, formats and production techniques — as ways to challenge the conventions of image and presentation to facilitate a transformative artistic experience.
- Sculpture
Immerse yourself in the ever-expanding field of this discipline as you create work in a host of contexts, including traditional gallery, site-specific, temporal/relational and installation modes.

The studio faculty comes from various educational experiences and a variety of studio disciplines. In this program, we have made a concerted effort to use a team-teaching approach. This provides the student with the expected expertise necessary in the focus discipline and also enriches the educational experience by including various insights outside of the specific medium. This crossover of ideas, learning methods and insights is crucial in creating a rich and fertile educational environment for the student.

In the same spirit, students are encouraged to interact between their different disciplines, appreciating the variety of approaches to art and learning styles.

BFA Degree Course Outline

We educate artists through a curriculum of academic course work balanced with studio art and art history courses. We encourage students to use their elective classes to expand their curriculum into disciplines that will enrich their total education. The freshman and sophomore years are a balance between general University studies and art and design courses.

Students begin to concentrate their studio course work in a specific area of the visual arts in the junior year in preparation for their senior studio. The senior studio is the most significant coursework in the undergraduate curriculum, as it reflects a time in which concepts and skills are focused and developed to produce a cohesive body of artwork and a portfolio for graduate study or professional applications.

All BFA students are required to submit work for the Foundations Review. An announcement about the date and time for the foundations review will be made via your Foundations instructors and usually takes place toward the end of the Spring semester each year.

BE SURE to save work from each of your Foundations classes to present and watch for announcements about time, date and place for the review in your clemson.edu e-mail.

 Senior Entrance Interviews

Prior to taking the Art 4710 / 4720 Senior Studio I and II sequence, students must pass the Senior Entrance Interview. Senior Entrance Interviews will take place toward the end of each semester and will be announced via your clemson.edu e-mail. Students are expected to make a presentation to a group of three (3) Art Department faculty members. The presentation may be via digital images and/or with actual work. Consult with your emphasis area advisor for guidance.

You will:

- Supply your reviewers with an artist’s statement at least 24 hours before your interview;
- Present at least 10 pieces of work you completed at Clemson;
- Give a brief oral presentation about your work;
- Be able to answer questions from your reviewers
- Ask your emphasis area advisor and two other faculty members to be there.
  o It is your responsibility to contact and confirm a time for the interview with all 3 professors (don’t just sign your name to the list and think this will take care of itself.
  o There will be a sign up sheet by the Acorn gallery or coordinated by faculty: Make sure that you leave enough space between reviews for people to set up and take down.

 6-Week Reviews
During each semester of ART 4710 and ART 4720 Senior Studio I and II sequence, you will need to schedule a 30-minute review with your studio area advisor and two other faculty members at the ten-week mark of the semester. Dates will be announced via your clemson.edu e-mail. You will do a brief presentation of your senior art works and then there will be an opportunity for feedback from the faculty.

Beyond the Classroom

Whether you plan to embark on a career in making, teaching or managing art, Clemson offers numerous opportunities for you to explore your abilities and show your creativity.

- Study Abroad: Summer Studio in Italy

  Offered every other year—2015, 2017, 2019, etc.—the Art Department’s own study abroad program allows students to spend time traveling, sketching, visiting and learning about historic works of art and contemporary works of art in Rome, Florence and Venice. Live in the beautiful quaint small city of Orvieto, while learning technical and compositional drawing skills to develop a series of drawings in the art studio. Take Italian language, cooking and Etruscan ceramic classes taught by Italian instructors.

  The College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities also maintains its own study abroad office in Strode Tower. Please visit Regina Foster, Director of Office of Off-Campus Programs to discuss the full range of options available to you. You may also visit: http://www.clemson.edu/studyabroad/

It educates through academic research and practice with art at its core, drawing upon varied disciplines to examine critically cultural issues and artistic concerns. The CVA engages the public through a variety of means and venues:

  - Exhibitions in the Lee and Acorn Galleries on the Clemson University campus, as well as and other exhibition spaces both on and off the campus;

  - Workshops and lectures by visiting artists and critics; and

  - Collaborative partnerships with other campus and non-profit partners such as:
    - Clemson Area Transit and the ARTS Center in Clemson to host Passport to the Arts, a gathering that celebrates the arts in Clemson at multiple venues in the city;

Materials Fees: CU Marketplace

Each of your studio art classes is assessed a Materials Fee to cover the cost of some (not all) of the materials offered by the Art Department to enrolled students. These fees may be paid via check or credit card.

Here is the web portal for payment:
https://secure.touchnet.net/C20569_ustores/web/store_main.jsp?STOREID=19

All Art Department classes are labs/studios, and hence, all Art Department classes have both Lab Fees (which you've already paid) and Materials Fees. The 50% of the Lab Fees that are paid to the Art Department cover a broad range of items from purchasing, repairing and replacing larger pieces of equipment (for example, while we recently received donations for new easels in drawing, Lab Fees actually paid for the majority of the new easels there). Lab fees also help to pay for graduate students to be in the lab spaces both during and after class, as well as "charge backs" to the department for certain maintenance issues, such as sink traps in the painting lab spaces, etc.).

Materials fees are used to buy items consumed each semester in your studio classes. This can be a wide range of items such as special paper, inks, solvents, acetylene gas, clay, glazes, drawing boards, specialized software and cables, as well as items that we only order once every few years in bulk, etc., etc., etc.

Taken as a whole, Materials Fees make the department function and are vital to our ongoing functioning. The department receives 100% of the Materials Fees charged, so even though it's highly inconvenient to charge you two fees, it's actually much more cost effective. If we rolled all of this into the Lab Fee, we would need to change you double to get the same impact!

Computer and Camera Requirement

The labs contain high-end PC and Macintosh computers, as well as laser printing equipment. All users have access to electronic mail, word processing and spreadsheet applications. All labs also provide full Internet service, including the World Wide Web. Computer labs are located in Martin, Daniel, Brackett, McAdams and Sirrine Hall as well as the Cooper Library.

Smoking & Tobacco Use:

Clemson University Tobacco-Free Campus
Clemson University is a tobacco-free campus as of Jan. 1, 2016. The new policy was approved by the University's administrative council, based on input from a task force comprised of faculty, staff, undergraduate and graduate students.

All forms of tobacco and smoke-related products will be prohibited under the policy. Along with cigarettes, the ban includes chewing tobacco, smokeless tobacco and electronic cigarettes, which have gained popularity as a tobacco alternative.

The policy applies to all university faculty, staff, students and campus visitors and will be in place for all Clemson campuses, as well as university-owned and leased facilities.

Clemson joins more than 1,600 colleges and universities that have tobacco-free policies. http://www.clemson.edu/campus-life/healthy-campus/tobacco-free/
Alcohol and Other Drugs  http://www.clemson.edu/campus-life/healthy-campus/aod/index.html

Clemson’s Philosophy
Clemson University is committed to maintaining an environment that is healthy, safe and attractive for all members of the community. Students who choose to use alcohol and other drugs assume a responsibility to comply with South Carolina laws and University policies, to make decisions that reduce their personal risks, and to consider the health and safety risks posed to others. The University provides education, programs, and policies to empower students to make responsible decisions relating to alcohol and other drug consumption. Students who choose to violate University policy related to alcohol and other drug use are subject to discipline as outlined in the student code of conduct. Where those actions also violate state and/or federal law, students are subject to legal consequences as well.

Our Strategy
In the spring 2014, Clemson University and the community developed the Alcohol and Other Drug 2020 Strategic Plan. Clemson University’s Alcohol and Other Drug Strategic Plan includes targets set for 10% improvement by 2020 as compared to 2010 national baseline, established as a composite of CORE data from 2009-2011, in the following measures: high-risk drinking and illegal drug use, consequences of alcohol and drug use, protective behaviors, strategic focus areas, prevention, intervention and treatment, environmental management and protective measures.

Clemson University’s Employee Drug and Alcohol policy can be found at http://workgroups.clemson.edu/FIN5337_HR_POLY_PROC_MANUAL/view_document.php?id=116.

Notification of Absence in Blackboard

There is a feature available in Blackboard http://bb.clemson.edu/ which allows you to quickly notify your professors of an absence from class, whether anticipated or unanticipated. The Notification of Absence module, available in Blackboard on the MyClemson tab and on the Students tab, is designed to allow you to quickly notify your professors whenever a University-sponsored function, illness, or hospitalization takes you away from class. All the notification requires is a brief explanation, dates, and times. Based on the dates and times you select, your instructors are automatically selected, but you have the final say over which instructors receive the notification and which do not. Though it does not serve as an official "excuse" from class, it does open the dialogue between you and your professor for further communication that needs to happen. As you know, class absence is a matter between the student and professor. As always, if you are unable to report the absence by computer, you can call the Dean of Students Office and someone will be happy to assist you. Access to this system can also be linked from the CU home page under the letter "A" for "absence" and under the letter "N" for "notification."

Extension Cords

Facts and Statistics

Extension cords are a leading cause of electrical fires, and can cause injury and death if used improperly. According to the CPSC: An estimated 3,300 residential fires originate from extension cords each year, killing and injuring over 300 people.

More than half of the injuries involve fractures, lacerations, contusions, or sprains caused by people tripping over the cords.

Continual use can cause the insulation to rapidly deteriorate, creating a dangerous shock and fire hazard.

Prohibited Use of Flexible Cords:

Common OSHA violations when using an extension cord include the following

• As a substitute for fixed wiring
• Run through walls, ceilings, or floors
• Run through doorways, windows
• Attached to building surfaces

Extension Cord Problems

Never run an extension cord through or in front of a doorway. It will be crushed or damaged and can pose a tripping hazard.

Never use two extension cords together.

Never use a cord with the ground portion cut away.

Never use a cord with an exposed wire or broken covering.

Please use only surge protectors/suppressors like the one pictured above, which has a flat plug that lies flush against the outlet, allowing the cord to hug the wall as it approaches the floor.
JUST SAY NO:

The above extension cord is NOT permitted for use in the Art Department studios or offices.

Extension cords may not be plugged into power strips; no “daisy-chaining.”

Yes! Power directly strip into outlet.
NO: “Daisy chained” power strips.

Inspections of Extension Cords
Since extension cords are exposed to damage they must be visually inspected before use for both external and internal defects.

External defects include:

- deformed pins
- missing grounding pins
- damage to outer jacket or insulation
- loose plug head

Internal damage may be present if:

- pinched outer jacket
- crushed outer jacket
- broken plug head
- use of duct tape or electrical tape if present.

Consumer Product Safety Commission website:

http://www.cpsc.gov/en/

By visiting the above website, you can find a complete list of electrical cords that have been recalled as well as detailed information as to where the cords were sold, the time period, and refund or exchange policy that has been implemented by each manufacturer or retailer.
