PERSONALIZED STUDY

Teaching? Business? PhD program? We’ll help you meet your future goals with a customized program. MACTS’ five core classes prepare you with critical thinking, global insights, and historical perspectives. After that, you design a course of study than can include:

- Courses in Communication
- Courses in other departments
- Internships
- Independent studies
- A research thesis, project thesis, or comprehensive exams

Our goal is to help you achieve yours.

MACTS graduates are in development, marketing, media, higher education, journalism, sports, tourism, PhD programs, and teaching. Where will you go?

Notable Rankings

#1 Alumni Network
#23 Public National Universities
#8 Up-and-Coming Innovative Universities
#3 Students Love Their College
#9 Outstanding Town-Gown Relations
#7 Happiest Students
#5 Best Career Services

http://www.clemson.edu/about/

Master of Arts in Communication, Technology and Society

Department of Communication
Clemson University
401 Strode Tower
Clemson, SC 29634
Phone: 864.656.1567
Fax: 864.656.0599

Director of Graduate Studies:
Dr. Travers Scott,
dscott3@g.clemson.edu

“Encouraging and supportive...”
FLEXIBLE OPPORTUNITIES

MACTS works with you. Our students are full-time and part-time, live in the Clemson area and Greenville, and combine MACTS with other personal interests. Experiences and opportunities include:

- Social Media Listening Center
- Graduate Certificate in Health Communication
- Study Abroad
- Work as lab assistant, instructor, media lab tutor
- Present at regional, national, or international conferences
- Publish individually or with faculty

EXPERT INSTRUCTION

MACTS admits a very limited number of students to make sure you receive close, personal attention from our faculty. Join our growing department to work with nationally recognized scholars and researchers in crisis communication, social media, health, sports, technology, music, gender, science communication, race, popular culture, education, and more. Our instructors also share professional experiences from working in advertising, PR, journalism, entertainment, athletics, and other private industries.

“MACTS is a program that challenges the mind and is full of supportive professors that encourage your academic goals.”

APPLY NOW

Applications are considered holistically, but invited students typically have:

- Bachelor’s degree from an accredited college or university
- GPA of 3.0 (4.0 scale) or better
- Competitive GRE scores

- Strong writing skills demonstrated through a sample and curriculum vitae/resume
- Specific reasons for pursuing the MACTS degree program at Clemson as well as evidence of successfully working independently on projects, all as described in your in curriculum vitae/resume and statement of purpose.

http://www.clemson.edu/graduate/admissions/