

APPLYING & ASSISTANTSHIPS

To apply to the School of Computing at Clemson, visit the graduate school application page at www.clemson.edu/graduate/admissions. We accept new graduate students in both fall and spring semesters. All applicants in Computer Science, Human-Centered Computing, and Biomedical Data Science & Informatics are evaluated for available positions as teaching assistants. Individual faculty members with grant funding evaluate students for research assistantships, and outstanding applicants are referred to relevant faculty advisors based on interest areas identified in the personal statement in the online application. Refer to the individual program pages online for specific application requirements.
