

ECE Staff Members Win College Awards

CLEMSON UNIVERSITY—

Congratulations to Gale Black, Lane Swanson, and Wendy Howard on the staff awards they received at the College of Engineering and Science Awards Luncheon in December.

Gale Black received the Hattie B. Wagener Award, which is the top administrative staff award in the College of Engineering and Science. This award was established in memory of Hattie Boone Wagener, a long-time secretary at Clemson University, to recognize outstanding administrative staff within the College of Engineering and Science.

Wendy Howard, Gale Black, and Lane Swanson (l-r) received awards at the CoES Staff Awards luncheon in December

Gale Black was chosen as the award winner by a committee made up of the Dean of Engineering and Science, a faculty member within the College of Engineering and Science, a staff member from another college on campus, and a member of the Clemson City Council. This is the second consecutive year that a member of the ECE staff was chosen to receive the Hattie B. Wagener Award.

Lane Swanson and Wendy Howard both received a Dean's Exceptional Staff Award. These awards are given to six administrative staff members in CoES who consistently go above and beyond the call of duty. Lane and Wendy were selected to receive these awards by a committee consisting of one staff member per department in CoES.
