

Kelly Arps

BS Biochemistry May 2012

Hi! My name is Kelly Arps and I am a sophomore biochemistry major from Alpharetta, GA. My career at Clemson began the summer before my freshman year when I participated in the EUREKA! Program. Since then, I have enjoyed the many benefits of honors membership, such as taking honors classes, living in the honors dorm, and attending various cultural events at the Brooks Center. I am a member of AED pre-professional health society, the National Society for Collegiate Scholars, and ALD honor society. I serve on the production team and participate in small groups for the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA), volunteer at a nearby health clinic, and am an active participant in intramural sports, playing ultimate Frisbee, flag football, basketball, soccer, and volleyball. Last summer, I took the opportunity to spend five weeks in Brussels studying European integration and economics and traveling around Belgium, France, and Spain. I spent the rest of the summer in Clemson as a counselor for the EUREKA! Program. I love to answer questions about Clemson University and the Calhoun Honors College so call or e-mail me anytime!
