Student Affairs/Higher Education Leadership

Tenure-Track Assistant Professor

The Eugene T. Moore College of Education at Clemson University seeks highly qualified candidates to fill a full-time tenure-track position at the rank of Assistant Professor in the Student Affairs academic preparation program. The Student Affairs and Higher Education programs at Clemson University are highly student-centered and well-respected regionally, nationally and globally. These programs are committed to the development of practitioners and scholars to serve in a variety of capacities in pursuit of social justice in higher education. The nine-month appointment will be effective for fall 2016. Clemson University is interested in candidates who can contribute to the diversity and excellence of the academic community through their research, teaching, and/or service. Clemson University is currently ranked as the 21st best national public university by U.S. News and World Report.

Qualifications:

- Doctorate in Student Affairs, Higher Education, Counselor Education, or related field
- Evidence of and potential to develop a strong record of scholarly productivity in Student Affairs/Higher Education
- Ability and experience in teaching graduate courses aligned with CAS graduate preparation program standards and professional standards in research, assessment/evaluation, counseling skills, and student affairs group facilitation
- Experience in, or potential to obtain external funding
- Significant experience as a full-time student affairs practitioner with increasing responsibility and a commitment to working with diverse populations
- Active participation and service in national, regional, or state professional organizations
- Appreciation and understanding of the use of information technology in student affairs
- Interest in facilitating and commitment to international experiences for student affairs students, practitioners and faculty

Responsibilities:

- Engage in research, publication, seeking external funding and other scholarly activities
- Teach courses in the Student Affairs master’s and higher education PhD program at various locations and through the use of asynchronous learning, hybrid course development and other online teaching methods
- Advise masters and doctoral students
- Direct and mentor student research by serving on doctoral committees
- Take a lead role in service to the program/department, as well as service to the college and university

To Apply: Please send letter of application, curriculum vita, graduate transcripts (an unofficial copy is acceptable), and three letters of reference (have your referees submit letters directly to us). Application materials should be sent electronically to the departmental administrative assistant, Sally Glenn, at sallyg@clemson.edu. Inquiries about the position should be made to the Search Committee Chair, James Satterfield at satter3@clemson.edu. Salary is competitive and commensurate with experience and qualifications. To ensure full consideration, submit materials by December 18, 2015. The review of applications will continue until position is filled. Clemson University is an AA/EEO employer and does not discriminate against any person or group on the basis of age, color, disability, gender, pregnancy, national origin, race, religion, sexual orientation, veteran status or genetic information. Clemson University is building a culturally diverse faculty committed to working in a multicultural environment and encourages applications from minorities and women.