CLEMSON UNIVERSITY

“From its inception as a military institution, Clemson has been recognized widely for the strong sense of character developed in its graduates. The Rutland Ethics Across the Campus program complements and formalizes this long-standing Clemson commitment.”

—James F. Barker, FAIA
President, Clemson University

ROBERT J. RUTLAND INSTITUTE FOR ETHICS AT CLEMSON UNIVERSITY

As a land-grant institution, Clemson has enjoyed a strong bond of trust with students, faculty and the community for more than a century. Today, the University strives to build on and strengthen that trust through the Robert J. Rutland Institute for Ethics.

The programs and activities of the Rutland Institute for Ethics are multidisciplinary and intended to benefit both the campus and the community. Campus activities focus on three groups: students, faculty and staff. Community programs are designed to reach as much of the community as possible, with special attention directed to the business, education and professional sectors.

BECOME A MEMBER OF THE RUTLAND ETHICS ALLIANCE.

Members of the Rutland Ethics Alliance share a common concern. They recognize the necessity of an ethical environment for genuine success in personal and professional life. They are committed to nurturing such an environment by promoting an understanding of core values and their importance to the creation of a stable and peaceful future.

As a corporate or individual member of the Rutland Ethics Alliance, you will support positive and proactive efforts to create and sustain a vigorous sense of integrity and responsibility on the Clemson University campus and in the communities it serves.

Annual membership in the Rutland Ethics Alliance is recorded as a tax-deductible contribution to the Clemson University Foundation, and donors are eligible for the Clemson Fund annual gift clubs.

As a member of the Rutland Ethics Alliance, you will receive discounts for programs co-sponsored by the institute, including Renaissance Center events. You will also have access to Rutland Institute programming such as the Ethics Toolbox Project, a customized ethics-training program for businesses and professionals; ethics consulting; lectures; and discussion forums.
