Guide to Your Financial Aid

We are pleased to offer you financial aid to help you reach your educational goals. Your financial aid award may include various types of financial aid such as scholarships, grants, loans and work. This guide explains the different forms of aid that may be part of your financial aid package. Aid programs that require financial need are based on the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). Most programs have a deadline for applying for admission, submitting test scores, or filing the FAFSA annually.

• Scholarships – Scholarships are merit-based gift assistance for undergraduate students. Some scholarships also have a need component.

• Grants – Grants are need-based gift assistance for undergraduate students. Some grants also have a merit component.

• Loans – Loans are assistance that must be repaid. Loans can be need based (subsidized) or non-need based (unsubsidized).

• Work – Federal Work-Study is need-based employment. Funds are disbursed by a paycheck rather than as a lump sum.

Scholarships

The Clemson National Scholars, Clemson Scholars, Clemson Scholars-Independent School, Presidential, Clemson Palmetto Pact, Trustee, Clemson Non-Resident Merit, and other recruiting scholarships are renewable, four-year scholarships. You must read the Award Messages that accompany these awards to become aware of the conditions for renewal (if applicable), which usually include maintaining a minimum cumulative 3.0 grade point average (GPA) and completing 24 unduplicated credit hours each year. Recruiting scholarships are based on your in-state or out-of-state residency, and will be adjusted if your residency changes. The Clemson Non-Resident Merit Scholarship will be reduced or removed if you receive tuition-specific aid such as an ROTC scholarship. The scholarships above (and other individually named scholarships) should equal or exceed the total scholarship offer in your Admissions acceptance letter, but may be split into several awards. Please note that some scholarships are awarded on an annual basis and are not renewable.

You will be paid twice monthly based on the hours you work during the pay period.

Do you need additional aid?

If you need additional aid, your parents may wish to apply for a Federal Direct Parent PLUS Loan if you are a dependent student. Graduate students can apply for the Federal Direct Graduate PLUS Loan. Private educational loans are also available to credit-worthy borrowers. We encourage you to apply for these types of loans in June each year to facilitate on-time payment. We recommend that you apply for the academic year (fall and spring) to prevent the need for a separate application and credit check for the spring semester.
