Tu 11:00 a.m. – 2:15 p.m.,
Th 11:00 a.m. – 1:45 p.m.,
F 9:15 a.m. – 1:45 p.m., and by appointment

Official Course Description: This course uses the sociological perspective to examine policy development, implementation, and evaluation in the public and private sectors. More specifically, it focuses on values and ethics and effects of social change efforts on the outcomes of policy formation, social planning, and implementation. Prerequisites: SOC 2010 or 2020 and junior standing.

Critical Thinking Emphasis: This course is part of the Clemson Thinks² program, which seeks to develop the critical thinking skills of Clemson students through transformative learning experiences; therefore, this course will be discussion-based, communication-intensive, and engagement-rich. Students will be expected to challenge their own assumptions and stretch the limits of their imaginations to identify and analyze existing social policies and programs and to propose alternative solutions to multifaceted problems.

Critical Thinking Methods and Testing: Although traditionally common pedagogical methods such as lecture, reading, and class discussion will be employed, much of the learning in this course will take place as students wrestle individually with complex social problems, communicate their thoughts to others, and then reflect upon the processes by which their thoughts developed. Class assignments will rely heavily upon case work, student-designed and led activities, and group projects and presentations. Students will also learn to work their way around the Elements of Thought wheel and will have the opportunity to design critical thinking activities and assignments for their classmates. Finally, all students in the class will be responsible for completing the California Critical Thinking Skills Test at the beginning and end of the semester in order to allow for measurement of changes in critical thinking ability that occur over the course of the semester. Students will take this test online, and although the results will not affect students' course grade, it is expected that all class members will give their best effort on the exam, as test results will provide valuable assessment information for the university and the Clemson Thinks² program.

Course Goals and Objectives: After completing this course, students should be able to:

- 1) Identify and analyze multidimensional social problems and evaluate the impact of personal, social, and cultural values on their definition.
- 2) Break down the steps in the policy development process and discuss the means by which various stakeholders influence the design of social policies and programs.
- 3) Pinpoint and assess the consequences of a variety of social welfare policies as they are currently implemented in the United States.
- 4) Identify and evaluate past and present U.S. social policies that relate to issues of poverty, health, education, child welfare and domestic violence, and mental health and substance abuse.
- 5) Synthesize information from a variety of sources in order to propose solutions to social problems outlined in sample cases.
- 6) Plan activities and develop and present material to educate other students about selected social policies and programs.

Required Text: Students in this course are required to read a number of online articles that can be found in the Modules folder on Canvas, as well as additional readings from the following text:

Segal, E. A. (2015). Social welfare policy and social programs: A values perspectives (4th ed.). Boston: Cengage Learning.

Course Policies

1) Academic Integrity: In accordance with Clemson University’s official statement on academic integrity, which is outlined in the “Academic Regulations” section of the undergraduate catalog, academic dishonesty will not be tolerated. Acts of academic dishonesty include lying, cheating, stealing, and plagiarism. If there is evidence that a student has committed any of these acts, a charge of misconduct will be submitted by the instructor to the Office of Undergraduate Studies for further investigation. If a student is found to be in violation of Clemson’s academic integrity policy, a grade of F for the assignment, and possibly the course, will result. (Please note that, for the purpose of this class, reuse of one’s own work is not considered a violation of the academic integrity policy.)

2) Accessibility: Students with documented disabilities or injuries who need accommodations should contact the Office of Student Accessibility Services as early in the semester as possible. After an academic access letter is supplied to the instructor, a plan will be made to address any special needs.

3) Attendance: Regular attendance is crucial to students’ success in this course; therefore, attendance will be taken during every class period. Students are allowed two absences without penalty. For each subsequent absence, points will be deducted from a student’s final point total for the semester in the following manner: 5 points for the third absence, 10 additional points for the fourth, 15 for the fifth, and 20 for the sixth. This policy applies to all absences, regardless of cause (illness, family and relationship problems, work obligations, extracurricular activities, late enrollment, etc.); however, the instructor may choose to waive the point deduction if a student provides a valid, written excuse for an absence. It is the student’s responsibility to contact the instructor within one week of the absence and to provide appropriate documentation to support the excuse; otherwise, the absence will be considered unexcused and the point deduction will apply.

Please note that if a student misses more than six class periods, the instructor will drop the student from the roll (if the last day to withdraw has not yet passed) or assign a grade of F for the course. Even if some absences are excused, no student may miss more than six class periods. Students who anticipate the need for an extended period of absence should contact the Dean of Students’ Office (864-656-0935) for assistance.

When a student is absent from a regular class session, he or she should secure any missed notes from a classmate. If an exam or in-class assignment was administered during the absence, the student must contact the instructor within 24 hours and provide a valid written excuse in order to be allowed to make up the assignment. Unless the absence was prearranged or due to an emergency, ten percent of the total point value of the assignment or test will be deducted from the student’s grade for each day that passes before it is submitted. Make-up assignments may vary in format from those administered in class, and there may be some assignments that, due to their nature, are impossible to make up; in these instances, students will receive a grade of zero for missed assignments. Also, students who do not take the initiative to arrange make-up tests and exercises according to these guidelines will receive a grade of zero for the assignments that they miss.

Because it is in the best interest of the class, the student, and the instructor for everyone to be present during every class period, those students who attend all class sessions throughout the semester—from the first to the last—will have five points added to their final class point totals. Please note that these points represent extra credit for those students who are present during every class period; failure to receive these points in no way constitutes a grade penalty against those who must miss class.

4) Classroom Conduct: Students are expected to arrive to class prepared and on time, to participate in class activities, and to remain in class until dismissed by the instructor. Students who arrive to class excessively late or who leave early will be counted absent for half of a class period; therefore, every other (i.e., the second or fourth) late arrival or early departure will incur the same penalty as one absence. Before class, students are expected to silence and put away all electronic devices, including cell phones and laptops. Questions and comments related to the course material are always welcome; however, individual conversations and acts of incivility and disrespect will not be tolerated.

5) Preparation for Class: Students are expected to complete all assigned readings by the due dates indicated on the course schedule. Partial outlines of the instructor's lecture notes may be found in the Modules folder on Canvas, and students are encouraged to print these notes and bring them to class. (Please note that portions of the lecture notes and presentations may contain copyrighted materials that are provided in compliance with the provisions of the Teach Act and that are intended to be used only by students within the course and only for instructional purposes. Please do not disseminate these materials further. [See the Use of Copyrighted Materials and Fair Use Guidelines policy on Clemson's website for more information.]) When written assignments are due, they must be turned in during class on the dates indicated on the course schedule. Ten percent of an assignment's total value will be deducted for each day that passes before the assignment is submitted. An extension of one class period will be given to all students if the university cancels class (e.g., due to inclement weather or power outage) on the day that a test or assignment was due.

In the event that the university administration determines that classes cannot physically meet on campus, class will be conducted online in accordance with the university's academic continuity plan for academic operations. After receiving notification of such an event through official university channels, please check Canvas for assigned learning activities. Specific instructions for accessing assignments will be listed in the Announcements section for the course. A test of Clemson's academic continuity plan will take place on e-Learning Day, Thursday, August 29. Please consult the Announcements on Canvas to find the assignment for our course for that date.

6) Tardiness of the Instructor: Students may dismiss themselves from class if the instructor fails to arrive within fifteen minutes after a class period was scheduled to begin.

7) Title IX: Clemson University is committed to a policy of equal opportunity for all persons and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, sexual orientation, gender, pregnancy, national origin, age, disability, veteran status, genetic information, or protected activity in employment, educational programs and activities, admissions, and financial aid. This includes a prohibition against sexual harassment and sexual violence as mandated by Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972. Students may contact Alesia Smith, Clemson's Title IX Coordinator and Executive Director of Equity Compliance (110 Holtzendorff Hall), with any questions or concerns related to this policy.

Methods of Evaluation

Each student's final grade for the course will be determined by his or her performance on two exams, a student-led class activity, a policy analysis paper or web page project, and a number of small in-class and homework assignments. Instructions for all assignments, as well as grading rubrics (when applicable), will be provided in advance in class and/or on Canvas.

Exams: Students will complete two exams this semester that require demonstration and application of knowledge of social policies and programs within the United States. Each test will consist of a variety of multiple choice, matching, true-false, short answer, and essay questions that will be drawn from the readings, lectures, class discussions, group activities, and videos. Each exam will be worth 100 points.

Student-Led Class: Students will be divided into six groups that correspond with some of the major social welfare issues discussed in the second unit of the course (poverty, child welfare, domestic violence, mental health, substance abuse, health, and education). Each group will be responsible for leading a class period on its assigned topic. Groups must develop student learning outcomes for their class period, select appropriate class readings, plan an activity for the day (e.g., an on-campus field trip, guest speaker, group exercise), and create a related assignment for the class to complete. Up to 100 points may be earned for this project.

Paper or Web Page: Students will have the option to compose an individual policy analysis paper or to create a web page that highlights a social problem and the relevant policies and programs that exist to address it. Each option is worth a total of 100 points. Students who choose to write a paper will be required to fully analyze a selected social policy and then to take and defend a position on it. Students who select the second option will develop an Adobe Spark web page to inform others about a selected social problem and its related policies. For both options, students will use the Elements of Thought wheel to identify the question at issue, important assumptions, concepts, information, and conclusions related to the issue, different points of view on it, and potential implications and consequences of the problem and related policies. This project will serve as each student's CT² artifact. The assignment will allow students to demonstrate successful accomplishment of learning outcomes such as identifying and analyzing multidimensional social problems, evaluating the influence of social context on problem definition, exploring the roles played by various stakeholders in policy development, and determining potential implications of social welfare policies as they are currently implemented.

Small Assignments and Participation: In order to apply course concepts and engage with class material, students will complete a number of smaller assignments throughout the course of the semester. These assignments will include those administered during student-led class periods, as well as those assigned by the instructor as in-class activities or homework assignments. Examples include case write-ups, reflection essays, and group activities. Points may also be awarded for participation in class discussion during some class periods. All of the assignments and participation points together will be worth a total of 100 points.

Extra Credit: Five points of extra credit are available to students who maintain perfect attendance throughout the entire semester, as indicated above. Additional opportunities for extra credit may be offered to the class at the instructor's discretion; however, no individual requests for extra credit will be granted, so students should take advantage of opportunities as they are offered to the class.

Grade Computation:

NOTE THAT POINT CUT-OFFS ARE FIRM AND WILL NOT BE NEGOTIATED.

All grade disputes must be submitted in writing within one week of the return of an assignment.

2 Exams @ 100 points each	200 points	A = 450 or more points
Student-Led Class	100 points	B = 400 – 449.5 points
Paper or Web Page	100 points	C = 350 – 399.5 points
Small Assignments/Participation	100 points	D = 300 – 349.5 points
Total Possible Points	500 points	F = 299.5 or fewer points
