

LARC 8300
Clemson University

Department of Landscape Architecture
Office: Lee 3-125
Email: tschur@clemson.edu

Graduate Seminar: Landscape Architecture History & Theory
Fall Semester 2021

Instructor: Dr. T. Schurch, ASLA, AICP, RLA^(CA)
Office Phone: 656-3926
Room/Time: Lee 1-129/10:05 – 2:45 TTR

Landscape Architecture History & Theory
Unit Presentations

As a main course assignment, the unit presentation is a significant to learning the subject matter and making the class successful.

Unit Presentation

Everyone in the class will have one unit presentations to make over the course of the semester. The presentations should cover 1.) main factors important to the historical nature of the work, 2.) the works' significance, 3.) the theoretical underpinnings that are the basis of the work, and 4.) any relationships the work might have to our times or other periods of history. Also be prepared to raise questions (and have answers) that probe the subject matter of a particular unit and that serve as the basis of seminar discussions. Use imagery and supporting verbal information as the framework of each presentation.

LARC 8300
Clemson University

Department of Landscape Architecture
Office: Lee 3-125
Email: tschur@clemson.edu

Graduate Seminar: Landscape Architecture History & Theory
Fall Semester 2021

Instructor: Dr. T. Schurch, ASLA, AICP, RLA^(CA)
Office Phone: 656-3926
Room/Time: Lee 1-129/10:05 – 2:45 TTR

Landscape Architecture History & Theory
Unit Presentations

As a main course assignment, the unit presentation is a significant to learning the subject matter and making the class successful.

Unit Presentation

Everyone in the class will have one unit presentations to make over the course of the semester. The presentations should cover 1.) main factors important to the historical nature of the work, 2.) the works' significance, 3.) the theoretical underpinnings that are the basis of the work, and 4.) any relationships the work might have to our times or other periods of history. Also be prepared to raise questions (and have answers) that probe the subject matter of a particular unit and that serve as the basis of seminar discussions. Use imagery and supporting verbal information as the framework of each presentation.

LARC 8300
Clemson University

Department of Landscape Architecture
Office: Lee 3-125
Email: tschur@clemson.edu

Graduate Seminar: Landscape Architecture History & Theory
Fall Semester 2022

Instructor: Dr. T. Schurch, ASLA, AICP, RLA^(CA)
Office Phone: 656-3926
Room/Time: Lee 1-129/10:05 – 2:45 TTR

Landscape Architecture History & Theory
Unit Presentations

As a main course assignment, the unit presentation is a significant to learning the subject matter and making the class successful.

Unit Presentation

Everyone in the class will have one unit presentations to make over the course of the semester. The presentations should cover 1.) main factors important to the historical nature of the work, 2.) the works' significance, 3.) the theoretical underpinnings that are the basis of the work, and 4.) any relationships the work might have to our times or other periods of history. Also be prepared to raise questions (and have answers) that probe the subject matter of a particular unit and that serve as the basis of seminar discussions. Use imagery and supporting verbal information as the framework of each presentation.

LARC 8300
Clemson University

Department of Landscape Architecture
Office: Lee 3-125
Email: tschur@clemson.edu

Graduate Seminar: Landscape Architecture History & Theory
Fall Semester 2022

Instructor: Dr. T. Schurch, ASLA, AICP, RLA^(CA)
Office Phone: 656-3926
Room/Time: Lee 1-129/10:05 – 2:45 TTR

Landscape Architecture History & Theory
Unit Presentations

As a main course assignment, the unit presentation is a significant to learning the subject matter and making the class successful.

Unit Presentation

Everyone in the class will have one unit presentations to make over the course of the semester. The presentations should cover 1.) main factors important to the historical nature of the work, 2.) the works' significance, 3.) the theoretical underpinnings that are the basis of the work, and 4.) any relationships the work might have to our times or other periods of history. Also be prepared to raise questions (and have answers) that probe the subject matter of a particular unit and that serve as the basis of seminar discussions. Use imagery and supporting verbal information as the framework of each presentation.