Doug Kelbaugh, FAIA
Emil Lorch Collegiate Professor of Architecture and Urban Planning and Dean Emeritus
Taubman College of Architecture & Urban Planning

Oct. 18
6:00PM
CDCC / CHS

URBAN COOL
Paradoxes of Heat, Health, Habitat and Population

A fervent presentation and explanation of the essential role of good urbanism in the life-threatening and civilization-challenging battle against Climate Change, Urban Heat Islands and other pressing problems that cities are uniquely and paradoxically able to address. Urban design and development that is compact, walkable, transit-served (like historic Charleston) also promotes healthier, happier, culturally richer, and more creative and productive lifestyles.