

Courses

Summer 1: 6 credits. All students take CHIN 4990: Selected Topics in Chinese Culture (in English) + CHIN 3980 (or a Chinese course approved by the program director)

Summer 2: 6 credits. All students take CHIN 4180, an anthropological area course (in English), + one Chinese language course (for internship, students take CHIN 4160 or CHIN 4170). Summer 2 is only for students who participate in Summer 1.

Location

In Beijing, the capital and political/cultural center of China, you'll have opportunity to visit world famous places, such as the Great Wall, Tiananmen Square, the Forbidden City, the Summer Palace, and Chinese National History Museum. Dalian, China's Silicone Valley, hosts many high-tech global companies including Microsoft, GE, NEC, IBM, HP, Dell, Intel, Nokia, Ericsson, Matsushita, Sony & Toshiba.

Cost

Program charges include tuition and fees, a non-refundable application fee, study abroad fee, and program fee. All summer 2020 program charges will be finalized and posted on the Clemson Abroad website by mid-October. Previous year's program costs are listed on the website as a reference only. Fees are subject to change based on factors including currency fluctuations and programmatic changes to the itinerary.

Contact your Program Directors: CUinChina@clemson.edu

Dr. Yanming An
Dept. of Languages
614 Strode Tower
yanming@clemson.edu

Dr. Yanhua Zhang
Dept. of Languages
304 Strode Tower
yhzhang@clemson.edu

About the Program

CU-in-China consists of two sessions: the 5-week first session in Beijing and the 4-week second session in Dalian. The second session is offered as an extension to the first to form a 12-credit hour summer semester. The goal of the program is to develop in participants an international awareness and understanding of the language, culture, and practices of business and health in China. In addition, the two-session summer semester design allows a combination of study abroad with an internship alternative to facilitate the timely completion of required one semester study abroad and 130 hours of internship for Chinese majors including ML, LAIB, and L&IH.

Students enrolled in the first session will arrive in Beijing in mid-May and stay and study on the campus of the China Minzu University in Beijing. They will take classes, experience local cultures, and tour Beijing, the cultural and political center of the country. They will also take one-week mid-program trip to different parts of China or nearby countries such as Taiwan or South Korea. The first session ends in mid-June, and students enrolled in the first session only will return to the U.S.

The second summer session begins in mid-June and ends in mid-July. Only the students who attend the first summer session are able to enroll in the second session. Students enrolled in the second session will move to Dalian. They will study at Dalian University of Technology and will live in the DUT dormitories with accompanying Clemson University faculty. When needed, DUT will work with the Clemson faculty to place students in suitable business or health entities.

Apply online: clemson.edu/studyabroad

CU in China

BEIJING • DALIAN
SUMMER 2020

CLEMSON
College of ARCHITECTURE,
ARTS AND HUMANITIES

