The College of Agriculture, Forestry and Life Sciences invites applications for funding for the 2019-20 CAFLS Undergraduate Research Initiative. This is for individual undergraduate students working under the mentorship of a CAFLS faculty member, as opposed to the team approach of Creative Inquiry.

Guidelines for the CAFLS Undergraduate Research Initiative:

- CAFLS undergraduate students must fill out an Application for Funding for the 2019-20 CAFLS Undergraduate Research Initiative. The application deadline is Friday, Sept. 20, 2019.
- Funding is open to CAFLS students working under the mentorship of a CAFLS faculty member.
- $500 will be allocated to faculty mentors to use for research expenses.
- It is suggested that students register to receive credit for undergraduate research.
- Students funded through this program are required to participate in the CAFLS Undergraduate Research Symposium on Wednesday, April 15, 2020. Students will give a poster or oral presentation and the following awards will be given to the winners in each group:
  - 1st place $300
  - 2nd place $200
  - 3rd place $100
- Students will be required to submit an abstract prior to the CAFLS Undergraduate Research Symposium.
- CAFLS faculty are limited to two funded projects per academic year under this program.
- CAFLS students conducting research under a faculty mentor in another college, while not eligible for funding under this program, are eligible and encouraged to compete in the CAFLS Research Symposium on Wednesday, April 15, 2020.
