Clemson's PEER/WISE Experience (PWE) program offers a glimpse of what your freshman year will be like. This three-week, optional introductory program is a great way to meet other students in your major while taking introductory classes in General Engineering, Chemistry, Physics, and Calculus. In addition, you’ll earn 2 hours of college credit.

You’ll live on campus and experience a college atmosphere complete with dining halls and classes. PWE counselors are Clemson undergraduate/graduate students majoring in Science, Mathematics, or Engineering (STEM). They’ll live with you to assist during the program and oversee activities in the residence halls.

Academics
You’ll find a variety of engineering, math and science classes. These introductory classes review some of the necessary objectives for achieving success at the college level. They’re designed to identify areas that may require further review while providing insight on real classroom experiences. We will also provide a unique opportunity to learn how to study, apply critical thinking and problem solving skills.

- General Engineering - learn about the many Engineering majors at Clemson and find tools to help you in your first year of engineering.
- Calculus - prepare for your first college Calculus course with this introductory review class.
- Chemistry and Physics - prepare for your first college Chemistry or Physics course with this introductory review class.

Fun
Enjoy a wide array of recreational opportunities when you’re not in classes. Go bowling on campus, play pool, go shopping or just watch movies in the lounge.
