

David Lamie, Ph.D.

Professor of Agribusiness and Rural Development

- Has been at Clemson for 15 years
- Regional food system development and new/emerging farmer development are currently his primary focal points

Dr. Lamie joined Clemson University in 2005. He has previously worked with the Illinois Institute for Rural Affairs, Virginia Tech and Purdue University in Extension/Outreach capacities. His Extension program at Clemson currently focuses on emerging and small farms and local/regional/community food systems initiatives. He also has experience with community, county and regional level strategic visioning and planning, rural broadband access and effective use, use value taxation and economic and fiscal impact assessment.

Visit Dr. Lamie's faculty page.

The Sonoco FRESH initiative is a platform designed to research, innovate, and deliver solutions to reduce food waste and promote sustainability.

CLEMSON
UNIVERSITY