

Andrew Orłowski

The Register

What would a Martian think?

Technology and Utopias

- Media
- Copyright
- Regulation: Spectrum

Technology and Utopias

“It's not so much a naïve question of people waiting on mountaintops for Christ to descend from heaven; rather, it's a more micro form of utopianism that operates through a tendency to think in terms of blank slates - when Americans 'try again,' they forget that the initial/existing conditions that led to, or derive from, failure are scratched. But that's not true.”

Ted Byfield

Muni Wi-Fi in the wild