This page contains a list of recent graduates and projects from different departments at Clemson University. It also includes information about various programs and faculty members, along with contact details. The page appears to be a part of the university's annual report or newsletter, highlighting achievements and milestones of the graduating students and faculty. The text is structured in a list format, with each entry detailing the student's name, major, and specific project or achievement. The content is primarily academic, focusing on research, projects, and educational initiatives. The page seems to be intended for an internal audience, possibly for alumni, faculty, and staff, to celebrate and acknowledge the achievements of the university's community. The year referenced at the top of the page suggests this is a dated document, likely from 2012.
