

Online M.Ed. in Teaching and Learning

College of EDUCATION

Clemson University's College of Education has produced award-winning teachers and leaders since its first teacher education classes offered in 1916. Now, our "Best in Class" quality can be shared nationally through our online Master of Education in Teaching and Learning — ranked among the nation's best online graduate education program four consecutive years, according to U.S. News & World Report. Embedded within a top 30 public university and designed for working professionals like you, the Clemson M.Ed. offers specialized skills and practical knowledge to help you take the next step in your career.

What is the M.Ed. program?

The Teaching and Learning M.Ed. is a 30-credit hour, 100% asynchronous online program for current K-12 educators. The rich, engaging curriculum will prepare you to advance your professional standing in just 18 months.

How do M.Ed. students learn?

Our students engage in rigorous curriculum through state-of-the-art online learning. Students complete 18 hours of core coursework, as well as 12 hours in their desired specialization area.

What do M.Ed. graduates gain?

Graduates gain skills to increase their career options, experience in solving core educational problems, and the opportunity to explore teaching, learning and motivation in context.

What Alumni Say About the Program

"This program has helped me grow, not only as an educator but as a person. Every class has had a substantial impact on my day-to-day teaching progression and it's only getting better. It has made me a more well-rounded educator, giving me tools to use for every situation."

Mary Clements
Fall 2019 Graduate

"Clemson's reputation is fantastic. The professors are relatable but very knowledgeable, and the program understands that you are still working a full-time teaching job while taking classes."

Christina Cadmus
Fall 2019 Graduate
