Enterprise Risk Management: One ACC's School's Story

The one certainty in the uncertain world of Enterprise Risk Management (ERM) for Higher Education is there is no template or one size fits all. The most effect ERM programs are founded on a standard framework but are further developed to match the unique structure and culture of its University. In this session, you will learn how the University of Virginia has developed their ERM program over time to best serve UVA. There will also be an opportunity to contribute best practice ideas from the ERM effort at your school.

Learning Objective Topics for the session:

- How ERM is fueled by subject matter experts, but must begin and end with University executive leaders
- Establishing key components in the ERM life-cycle
- Identifying program governance structures
- The types of challenges faced by public universities compared to private universities
- Available resources to help develop your ERM program

Speakers:

Phil Porter

Phil is a graduate of the University of Virginia's McIntire School of Commerce. He spent 17 years living and working overseas doing faith-based relief and development work in over a dozen countries.
