

Where will the world CU?

The Clemson University Scholarships & Awards Committee recently extended additional scholarship eligibility to students participating in a sanctioned study abroad experience. Some scholarships that were previously restricted to satisfy Clemson University charges can now be used to study abroad. Please note that some scholarships are still unavailable for studying abroad due to their funding source. Other restrictions may apply such as:

- A scholarship awarded for a fall and/or spring semester is not applicable to a summer program.
- Donor scholarships (scholarships from outside Clemson University) require written permission from the donor to be used for study abroad.
- Scholarship recipients will still be required to meet all renewability requirements applicable to their scholarship. Recipients must be aware of differences in foreign credit levels and grading scales.

In addition to the expanded flexibility with scholarships, Clemson University also allows out-of-state students to pay in-state tuition for Clemson courses taught abroad. (During this term, scholarships for out-of-state students will be suspended until non-resident tuition rates apply.)

We hope many students will take advantage of these policies that make studying abroad more affordable. To determine if your current scholarship(s) can be used for studying abroad, please make an appointment with the Study Abroad Coordinator in the Office of Student Financial Aid approximately three months prior to your departure.

Fun and Safe Travels!
